

DIARY NOTES

21 January 1960

DD/S

1. I spent an hour and a half with the Medical Staff meeting with all of the new doctors and talking with them about their duties. I was again most favorably impressed by the amount of work that they are carrying on with a small staff, and, particularly, with the innovations which have been designed to accomplish a great deal without the actual participation of a doctor.

2. Captain Spore telephoned to say that the draft on "reimbursement for military personnel" was entirely acceptable to the Department of Defense. I agreed to attempt to get the Director's signature as well as the Director of the Bureau of the Budget's and then forward it to the Department of Defense for the Secretary's signature. H

25X1A6a 3. [REDACTED] called my attention to a request from the Communications Station on [REDACTED] asking for two more administrative slots to take care of the work which the Station used to do. I asked him to look into this matter on his trip.

25X1A9a 4. [REDACTED] was in to see me about the censorship problem. Briefly, he was appointed as the Director's representative in 1958. A month or so ago he briefed a [REDACTED] of the CI Staff on the over-all governmental policies, etc. Much to his surprise the CI Staff then obtained the Director's signature on letters to Governor Hoegh and the Secretary of Defense appointing [REDACTED] as this Agency's representative. 25X1A9a Actually, I see nothing wrong with the CI Staff assuming this responsibility---and it is probably where it belongs---however, it is regrettable that they took this action without any coordination either with Milton or the Deputy Director (Support).
